It will not be given at her superb villa Marble House, which has been the scene of many festivities, but at the dancing pavilion at Easton's Beach. Mrs. Belmont is quite right in calculating that a ball in a summer palace is no longer a overly for Newport and she contends that there will be quite zs much enjoyment for her friends in surroundings that may not be so verwhelmingly oppressis e on a hot summer's night.

This pavilion constructed for this year has a spacious dancing floor, and while its interior is commonplace, it will be specified. The tableaux vivants passed off splenting to the period they represent.

Mrs. William Disston, who is passing the summer at Narragansett Pier, was here last Sunday, when Mrs. J. Fred Pierson gave a luncheon in her honor. Mr. and Mrs. Willard D. Straight, who have not been in New York since their marriage, which was celebrated last summer in Switzelrand, are expected to come here for a visit.

The balls already mentioned are not all that will be given next week. There will be one on Tuesday night at the Casino, arranged especially for the members of the National Lawn Tennis Association, who are already beginning to arrive for the tournament which begins Monday and which will find Newport full up. Invitations are being sent out in the names of Mrs. R. Latingston Beeckman Mrs. F. K. Sturgis, Mrs. Arthur S. Burden, Mrs. Henry A. C. the late Mrs John Jay, that was done about about 1830. She wore a quaint costume of white mousseline de soie with a suggestion of a hoop skirt, her hair being done in high puffs. During the waits there was incidental music by Conrad's orchestra and after the tableaux all that had posed went in their costumes to Mrs. Richard T. Wilson's dance. St. John's Free Church, for which the entertainment was arranged by Mrs. Hamilton Fish Webster, Miss Edith Wetmore and Miss Lydia Redmond, is sure to benefit to the extent of a handsome sum.

Mrs. Alexander D. B. Pratt furnished a mild sensation at the Casino on Tuesday morning by her costume, which in some ways was quite startling. She wore with her rather simple gown of white linen one black and one white stocking, a black shoe for the white stocking and vice versa. This getup certainly created comment and perhaps more than was expected. The fashion is quite Parislan, some of the skaters at the Palais de Glace in Paris last winter having set that style. Mrs. Pratt on her subsequent visits to the Casino did not repeat her experiment nor has any one followed it.
